CHIEF JUSTICE TO HEAR ANNA'S PLEA TUESDAY

Hoodin Puts Off Move

MAY 4 IS DEATH DATE

Son Cincinnati Woman's Only Concern

COLUMBUS, April 30—(UP)—Attorneys for Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn, convicted Cincinnati poison slayer, today announced they would delay their appeal for the right to carry her case to the United States Supreme court until May 3, the day before she is sentenced to be electrocuted.

Joseph H. Hoodin, chief counsel for Mrs. Hahn, originally planned to argue his request for a stay of execution before Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant of the Ohio Supreme court today. At the time of the scheduled hearing Hoodin requested the delay.

At the hearing next Tuesday, Chief Justice Weygant will decide whether there is sufficient grounds to order the stay in order that her attorneys may prepare briefs to carry the case to the nation's highest court.

Aged German Poisoned
Mrs. Hahn was convicted of the murder of Jacob Wagner, 78 year old German friend.

Mrs. Hahn, who has been the only woman inmate of the penitentiary since her conviction last November, told Hoodin yesterday that her only concern now was for the care of her twelve-year-old son, Oscar. She expressed the hope that the boy could be placed in the care of her attorneys if she dies in the electric chair.

Mrs. Hahn married Philip Hahn, a Cincinnati telegrapher, seven years ago. Oscar was born in Germany, his father, according to the story told by Mrs. Hahn during her trial, having been a Viennese physician.

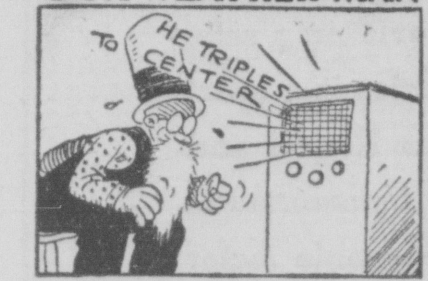

After a conversation yesterday with Mrs. Margaret Allman, State Welfare Director, Hoodin said that he probably would impose no further objections to an interview between Mrs. Hahn and newspapermen, scheduled for 11 o'clock Monday morning. He said he had suggested that no oral questioning be permitted and that the interview be conducted under strict supervision.

NORTON SEEKING NAMES TO FORCE WAGE-HOUR BILL

WASHINGTON, April 30—(UP) Supporters of the administration's wage and hours bill threatened today to prevent adjournment of congress until the house passes some form of labor standards legislation.

Despite growing sentiment for adjournment by June 1, they declared that they had sufficient strength to hold congress in session until late in June to obtain at least passage by the house.

Chairman Mary T. Norton, D., N. J., of the house rules committee and author of the bill which the rules committee pigeon-holed yesterday, prepared to file a petition late next week to discharge the rules committee and force the bill to the house floor.

She accused the rules committee of employing "undemocratic procedure" and declared:

"We'll just prevent adjournment until this bill is passed."

In a last-minute, unsuccessful attempt to get clearance for her bill, she had pleaded before the rules committee, telling them that President Roosevelt had expressed his approval of the bill. But the committee voted eight-to-six to refuse the bill a rule.

Mrs. Norton predicted that her petition would get the required 218 signatures within a few days after its introduction.

LIQUOR STILL LOCATED UNDER PRISON HOSPITAL

Flowers For April Sent To Terwilliger By Businessmen

Flowers of the Chamber of Commerce for April were delivered Saturday to Attorney Meeker Terwilliger.

Mr. Terwilliger was honored for his outstanding work in the preparation of Circleville's Northwest Territory celebration for May 9.

As general chairman in charge of arrangements for the event he has devoted a large amount of his time in recent weeks in arranging an elaborate celebration that will be educational and historically appropriate.

Each month a committee of the Chamber of Commerce selects a person who, in its opinion, has done the most for Circleville and Pickaway county in the last 30 days. Flowers are contributed by R. L. Brehmer, N. Court street florist.

COOGAN CLAIMS PROOF EARNINGS SHOULD BE HIS

HOLLYWOOD, April 30—(UP)—Jackie Coogan's lawyers asserted today that they had discovered new documentary proof that the money Jackie earned as a boy belongs to him now.

Attorney William Rains spent five hours going through the ledgers of Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc., the concern that Coogan contended was to keep his assets for him. Arthur L. Bernstein, Coogan's stepfather, has been using the establishment as the headquarters for a beer business.

"The document I found proves beyond question that at least a part of the money Coogan earned now belongs to him," Rains said. He examined the records of Coogan productions under a court order, seeking evidence to use in court Monday when Jackie's suit against his mother and stepfather is scheduled for hearing.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernstein announced that they would ask the court to appoint an auditor to go over the books.

Jackie is contending that he earned $4,000,000, which he is seeking to recover. A court receiver reported that only about $500,000 is left. The Bernsteins contend that Jackie is not entitled to the money because California law gives parents the earnings of all minor age children.

F. D.'S MONOPOLY SPEECH GREETED BY TWO LEADERS

WASHINGTON, April 30—(UP)—Congressional leaders indicated today that President Roosevelt's request for a $500,000 study of the problem of monopoly would get prompt approval.

Sens. William E. Borah, R., Idaho, and Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D., Wyo., joint authors of a pending bill to require federal licensing of corporations, applauded the President's recommendations, but said that legislative action should not be delayed beyond next year.

"I have no objections to the investigation proposed in view of the fact that it will be very difficult to legislate before next session," Borah said.

"The great fear I have is that the legislation will string along and finally reach a dusty shelf in the form of 10 or 20 volumes which few ever will consult. We ought certainly to be ready to act by next session."

O'Mahoney said that the President's message represented a "positive forward step" and that he was ready to help.

The new series will be printed in numbers from one to 5,000, with the first 49 nickels to be retained by the committee for disposition at a later date.

Announcement has not been made as to where the nickels will be placed on sale first. This announcement will be made as soon as possible so persons, if they desire, may obtain numbers similar to those they purchased in the first issue.

Approximately 4,500 in the first issue have been distributed for sale. Seven hundred were issued to Circleville schools Friday to be sold to pupils.

Decoration of downtown store windows with antiques for the celebration was in full swing Friday and Saturday. Up to date merchandise was being returned to storekeepers and windows were being filled with articles, many of which are over 100 years old. The committee in charge hopes to have most of them complete by the first of the week.

Distribution of celebration programs was made Friday. Two thousand programs have been printed on blanks prepared by the Federal Writers' project of the W. P. A. in Ohio.

We should teach our children not to spend that which they haven't got. Spend to get back what you want. You must have what you spend and it must be spent in such a XENIA, April 30—(UP)—A hoax warning Greene county jail officials of a supposed mass jail break plot paved the way today for the escape of Harold (Flick) Knisley, 29, a fugitive for 11 months before his capture last February.

While Henry Jackson, Negro, night turnkey, was watching a rear window, through which the supposed break was to take place, Knisley picked the lock on a door between the jail block and the sheriff's office. Knisley had sent notes to the jail officials during the last two weeks warning them that other prisoners were planning to flee through the rear window.

When Jackson returned to the sheriff's office after watching the rear window for about 20 minutes, Knisley overpowered and slugged him with a black jack taken from the office desk and then made his escape by the front door.

Knisley escaped from the London prison farm March 21, 1937, eluded authorities in several counties until he was captured at his father's Pike county home Feb. 26. He was awaiting grand jury action on robbery charges here.

Twenty-three other prisoners in the jail block with Knisley made no attempt to escape.

Several charges are on file against him in other Ohio counties.

Czechoslovakian Pressure

BY UNITED PRESS
Europe's fumbling for a peace formula today threatened to develop into an economic war in the Balkans.

Great Britain and France, joined in a powerful new military alliance, were understood to have decided on firm action through diplomatic and economic channels to put a check-rein on Nazi expansion in central Europe. At the same time, Britain inaugurated a gigantic program to build up her air defenses to perhaps 18,000 planes.

The Franco-British formula, worked out at conferences of the two governments' leaders at London, appeared to hinge on pressure on both sides to settle peacefully the Nazi quarrel with Czechoslovakia. But behind this pressure would be the combined and expanded military might of both Britain and France, in addition to their economic aid to the Czechs.

The preparations for economic conflict—the historic forerunner of military action—in Central Europe were probably the most significant development in the struggle to check Nazi Germany, despite the fact that it was highly uncertain how far Britain would carry the program.

Speech Awaited

Definite assessment of the Franco-British action necessarily was postponed until after speeches tomorrow by Adolf Hitler and his visit next week to his dictatorial partner, Fascist Premier Benito Mussolini at Rome. The visit took on far greater importance as a result of the London agreement and of efforts by Britain and France to offset the Rome-Berlin axis by treaties of friendship with Italy.

The importance of Anglo-British economic action in general Europe rests on the fact that such a program would strike at the heart of Germany's eastward expansion. Over a long period, but particularly in the last few years, the Nazi efforts have been directed toward economic domination of the Balkan states and Hitler's future power depends largely on success of that policy.

LEIST SEEKS U. S. MONEY TO BUILD DISPOSAL PLANT

A total allocation of $61,363 was granted by the government. Mr. Leist said the first federal payment will be 25 percent of the total project which amounts to about $153,000.

At the present time work is going forward on the construction of a dike at the plant site. Equipment is being set up for driving concrete piling under the digester tanks. About 35 men are employed on the project at the present time.

Big 10 Field Meet Expected To Be Wide Open Struggle

COLUMBUS, April 30—In the best tradition of Western Conference competition, another wide open struggle looms for the 38th annual conference track and field championships to be held at Ohio Stadium on May 20 and 21.

Long installed as the finest track meet in the middle-west, the coming meet will again provide a full program of keen rivalry. Augmenting the usual thrills attendant to such a contest will be the appearance of Glenn Cunningham, the king of the milers, in a special mile race.

"JUST TWITCH," SAYS DIZ DEAN OF ARM INJURY

CHICAGO, April 30—(UP)—It was just a twitch in the arm, Dizzy Dean said today, and nothing serious.

"It'll be all right," Diz said. "Just a twitch there in the fourth inning. I was workin' on Lew Riggs when it happened. As soon as I told Charlie Grimm about it, he took me out."

Dean was leading the Cincinnati Reds, 1 to 0, when he walked Riggs but Relief Pitcher Jack Russell was credited with the victory.

Diz was with the Cubs as they met the Cardinals at St. Louis today. Grimm refused to say when he would work again, but there was a possibility he may pitch against his old teammates in St. Louis Sunday.

The Cubs denied a report they had offered the Cards $150,000 for Joe Medwick, National league batting champion.

'FIGHTING FOX' MAY WIN WOOD MEMORIAL RACE

NEW YORK, April 30.—(UP)—William Woodward's Fighting Fox, eastern favorite for Kentucky Derby honors, was an even money choice to win today's 14th running of the Wood Memorial stakes at Jamaica.

The Belair stud colt was coupled in the betting with Wheatley stable's Storms and Quick Devil, neither of which is eligible for the Louisville feature.

Two other derby candidates were in the field of nine. Nedyr, owned by Willis Sharpe Kilmer, will be trying to redeem his failure in the Stuyvesant handicap last week, and Bourdon King, winner of the Chesapeake stakes in Maryland last week, is given a good chance.

Others in the field are Cant Wait, owned by Myron Selznick; W. P. Stewart's Pastured; Woodland farm's Opera Hat, and Greentree stable's Woodsong.

The Wood is the final eastern Kentucky derby preview, although it is at a mile and 70 yards compared with the derby distance of a mile and a quarter. Today's running carries a purse of $25,025 if all nine run, with the winner's share, $17,700.

REDS BACK HOME AFTER DEFEATS ON CUBS' FIELD

CINCINNATI, April 30.—(UP)—The Cincinnati Reds, buried deep in the second division of the National league, returned home today to meet their No. 1 nemesis, the Pittsburgh Pirates in the first of a three game series.

Invaders Cop Four Firsts Against Seven For Locals

Circleville high school track and field men, paced by some of the finest short and middle distance runners the school has had in the last several years, won a 57 1-2 to 37 1-2 meet from Piketon, Friday evening, under the lights of school field.

Because of the condition of the track, which is cut up by poles holding the lights, times were slow.

The runners featured the performance although Bob Liston and Frank Woodward came through with surprise victories in the high jump and broad jump. The Tiger team took seven first while Piketon was able to score on top in four events. Outstanding member of the invading team was Hunter, who won the mile and pressed Kenny Smith to the limit in the half mile.

Marvin Jenkins topped the sprint men by taking first place in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. He was a member of the half mile relay team, too.

The Tigers did not send a team to Delaware, Saturday, to enter the annual Wesleyan relays because Rusty Owens, reliable No. 3 man on the relay team, was working. Several other youths might have won some points, but they decided they would rather perform at home Friday evening than go to Delaware Saturday.

The summary: POLE VAULT: Won by Henson, (P), 8 feet 9 inches; C. Martin (C); Selby (C).

100 YARD DASH: Won by Jenkins (C), 10.4 seconds; Woodward (C); Huff (P).

SHOT PUT: Won by Wheeling (P), 35 feet 3 1-2 inches; Garner (C); Davis (C).

MILE RUN: Won by Hunter (P), 5 minutes 10 seconds; Walters (C); H. Smith (C).

HIGH JUMP: Won by Liston (C), 5 feet 4 inches; Williamson and Henson, (P), tie for second and third.

HALF MILE RELAY: Won by Circleville (Woodward, Zaenglein, Owens, Jenkins), 1 minute 34.8 seconds.

QUARTER MILE: Won by Owens, (C), 58.8 seconds; K. Smith (C); Baker (P).

BROAD JUMP: Won by Woodward (C), 18 feet one-half inch; Huff (P); Owens (C).

DISCUS: Won by Wheeling (P), 100 feet; Holt (P); J. Davis (C).

HALF MILE: Won by K. Smith (C), 2 minutes 20 seconds; Hunter (P); Smith (P).

220 YARD DASH: Won by Jenkins (C), 24 seconds; Woodward (C); Huff (P).

SCHOOL COACHES MEET MAY 6-7 AT OHIO STATE

COLUMBUS, April 30.—Between 500 and 600 high school football coaches are expected to attend the seventh annual Ohio State football clinic to be held here May 6 and 7. Differing from previous clinics, two days instead of one will be devoted to a breakdown analysis of football.

The annual Ohio High School Football Coaches Association meeting will be held in conjunction. Assisting Francis A. Schmidt, chairman of the clinic, will be Stu Holcomb, Muskingum; Sid Gillman, Denison; Al Holman, Franklin and Marshall; Gomer Jones, John Carroll; and Ernie Godfrey, Fritz Mackey and Howard Blair, members of the Ohio State coaching staff.

Schmidt will open the program on Friday morning with a discussion of the problems and progress of football during 1937. Round table discussions will be held after lunch each day. The clinic will close with a preview of the 1938 Ohio State team when the varsity meets the reserves at 3:30 Saturday afternoon.

YOUNG PITCHER, ROOKIE AIDING INDIAN CHANCES

Feller Scores His Third Victory Of Year With Fine Performance

CLEVELAND, April 30.—(UP)—Bob Feller was in the top bracket of American league pitchers today following his third consecutive victory of the season.

The 19 year old Iowa farmboy turned in a great exhibition yesterday at St. Louis as he hurled the Cleveland Indians to a well-deserved 3 to 2 victory over the Browns. The victory enabled the Indians to end their first road trip with a record of six triumphs in seven starts.

With shrewd Rollie Hemsley working behind the plate and handling his deliveries in masterful fashion, Feller turned in a brilliant performance against the Browns. The youngster had only a narrow lead throughout the game and was forced to pitch carefully to every batter.

Feller permitted the Browns only eight hits and never gave up more than two safeties in any one inning. The St. Louis runs came in the sixth and eighth innings.

Nine Whiff Air

The youthful right-handed ace of the Tribe staff had excellent control and passed only three batters. He struck out nine men, to bring his knockout total for the three games he has worked to 26.

The offensive side of the Indians attack was dominated by the rookie Ken Keltner, Hal Trosky and Feller himself. Keltner and Trosky each secured three hits

TEXAS COLLEGE TEAM FEATURES PENN'S RELAYS

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—(UP)—North Texas State Teachers college, famous for its foot-racing twins, threatened to steal the show again today as the 44th annual Penn relays entered the final day of competition at Franklin field.

The athletes from the Lone Star state, already in possession of the major meet record of 1938, were favored to add two more relay titles at the expense of Indiana, which scored a year ago.

Yesterday, with the Rideout twins, Blaine and Wayne, pulling the team out of a rut on the last two legs, Texas took the 2 1/2 mile distance medley title which Indiana won a year ago. The Texans were clocked in 9:59.4 breaking the meet record of 10:04.7 set last year by Indiana and also the unofficial world mark of 10:00.3 which Indiana set in June, 1937, at Columbus. The time, however, will not be recognized as an official world mark because the international athletic federation does not recognize the distance.

Today the Texans, seek the half mile and four mile crowns which Indiana took last year. And, because the newly-surfaced track is lightning fast, records appear certain in both events.

and Feller two. Lary and Averill secured the other safeties credited to the Indians.

Keltner was the major factor in the Tribe's run-making activities. The stocky third baseman homered in the fifth inning to score Trosky ahead of himself and then singled in the seventh to plate Trosky again after the first sacker had tripped.

The Indians were to open a series here today with the Detroit Tigers. Earl Whitehill and Vernon Kennedy were to be the opposing hurlers.

STARS OF OHIO TRACK AND FIELD MEET IN RELAYS

DELAWARE, April 30.—(UP)—The brightest stars of Ohio's scholastic track and field ranks were here today for competition in the seventh annual Ohio Wesleyan Relays.

A total of 69 schools sent 861 individual competitors here for the meet.

Included in the entrants were Cleveland Central, which last week won the Mansfield Relays. Toledo Scott, the defending champion here and second to the Cleveland school at Mansfield, also was here. The defending titlist in Class "B" is Columbus Upper Arlington, which was represented by 30 athletes.

All events in the Wesleyan relays are on a team basis. To score, a school must enter four men in each running event and three in each field event.

YESTERDAY'S HERO — Ken Keltner, 21-year-old Cleveland rookie, who hit a homer and two singles to drive in three runs as the Indians' kept up their blistering pace with a 3-2 win over the Browns.

ADEQUATE TRANSPORTATION

Vitally needed then - Indispensable now!

TWO HUNDRED YEARS after America was settled, the country's vast natural resources were scarcely touched. The most vital need for the development of the nation was adequate transportation. Without it, progress was impossible.

Then, in the 1830's, America saw the most significant economic development in her history—the building of the first railroads. Among those early lines was the original unit of the Norfolk and Western Railway—the City Point Railroad, which started operation over its nine miles of track between Petersburg and City Point, Va., on September 7, 1838. That little road displaced the gutted wagon trails, the primitive slow-moving ox cart, the rickety stage coach, and fulfilled an acute need for a faster, more adequate transportation.

In 100 years, a network of steel rails has spanned the continent, bound thousands of isolated settlements into a single united nation, and a vast wilderness has grown into the richest and most progressive country in the world. During its "Century of Service" the Norfolk and Western Railway, today a system with 5,000 miles of track in six states, has played a major role in that unparalleled growth.

A century ago, the railroads were vital to the development of the country. Today, they are indispensable to the business and commerce of the nation. Providing a safe, dependable, adequate transportation service to meet the needs of America is a great responsibility, a tremendous task. Only the railroads can do the job. The Norfolk and Western Railway will continue to meet, efficiently and adequately, the transportation needs of the territory it serves, and will maintain its place as an indispensable factor in the life of the communities along its lines.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Mark 9:14-29

Here they found a father with his young son afflicted by an evil spirit and the nine apostles helpless to bring relief. Thereupon the father appealed to Jesus to heal his child.

To Jesus the father said, "If thou can't do anything help us." Jesus said, "All things are possible to him that believeth." "I believe," said the father, "help thou mine unbeliever."

Jesus graciously overlooked the doubt of which the man was ashamed and rewarded the faith of which he was unwashed, as he restored the child. (GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 9:23.)

Mark 9:23—"All things are possible to him that believeth."

School Faculty Elects Helen Spindler Best

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Ashville, Phone 79

The Ashville high school faculty has voted Miss Helen Spindler the outstanding member of this year's senior class. This entitles her to attendance at the Circleville Kiwanis club dinner at the Country Club next Monday evening, May 2, to which each school of the county has been invited to send its outstanding senior.

Others of the class plan to attend the special meeting to be held at the Circleville H. S. after the dinner.

The A. H. S. Home Ec. II class (Friday evening out at Court-right's picnic ground) put on a little party for the Home Ec. I class. All enjoyed themselves in the various games and stunts; also, when it came to the eats.

Our eighth grade teacher, Mr. Irvin went to the Walnut school Friday to give the annual Eighth Grade test. Mr. Griffith of Walnut came to Ashville for the same purpose. This should prove more satisfactory than shifting pupils.

The last local P. T. A. meeting of the year was held here Thursday night and drew one of the largest crowds of the year. This was probably because of the fact that each and every grade room had a number on the program. The organization voted to sponsor the usual last-day-of-school picnic on Tuesday May 24.

Second Grade News

Our percent of attendance for the month of April was 90. We are expecting a higher percentage for the month of May. This grade made clown spelling booklets last week. Those that received all 100's in their rabbit spelling booklets are as follows: Faye Murphy, Carolyn Fudge, Bobby Eccard, Jimmy 'ard, Marvin Monroe, and Wilma Lundry.

For our art work last week, the boys and girls colored clowns which were used for a border above our front black board.

Our visitors for last week were Mr. Higley and Mr. McDowell.

This grade prepared a number for the P. T. A. which was a drill, "Our Class" given by 12 boys and girls.

Conviction to Stand

Not just a few, but many of our Supreme Court members have called at Headquarters within the past few days and each individual member has expressed his opinion as to how Anna Hahn, now in her death cell in the Ohio penitentiary, should be disposed of, by death in the electric chair or should her death sentence be reduced to life imprisonment. Of the 50 members of the Court voting, all are for electrocution except three. A half dozen women were asked if they thought she should die for her crime and they all were very pronounced against her and was getting what she deserved. So when Dave hears of the decision of Our Court, it'll be just too bad for Anna.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Mark 9:14-29

Here they found a father with his young son afflicted by an evil spirit and the nine apostles helpless to bring relief. Thereupon the father appealed to Jesus to heal his child.

To Jesus the father said, "If thou can't do anything help us." Jesus said, "All things are possible to him that believeth." "I believe," said the father, "help thou mine unbelief."

Jesus graciously overlooked the doubt of which the man was ashamed and rewarded the faith of which he was unashamed, as he restored the child. (GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 9:23.)

Mark 9:23—"All things are possible to him that believeth."

LOW INTEREST

IN borrowing $50,000,000, the United States government is said to have broken the record for cheap money. The "treasury bills" composing this total were sold to various lenders at rates averaging nine cents per $1,000 for three months.

Many would like to borrow a few hundreds or thousands at that rate.

It is fortunate that the government's credit is still so good as these figures suggest, in spite of vast spending and mounting debt. It would be far better, though, if the vast reservoir of credit, of which these fifty millions are merely a bucketful, could be poured into private enterprise.

WELCOME FOR NON-NAZI BOOKS

THE Nazi book-burning in Vienna, which began after Hitler's seizure of Austria, has one unusual result. Four students of Princeton have cabled to the Fuehrer asking him to donate to their university the non-Aryan books seized in the Austrian library program. They say they have done it in good faith, and there is no doubt that the Princeton library would appreciate the books, which represent some of the best literature of modern times.

But Hitler, of course, will not grant the request. He may even regard it as an insult. The Nazi party is the best judge of what people should read. Hitler seems to be interested in only one book, "My Fight", which has become the Nazi Bible.

It would be a neat but futile response if Adolf sent the boys an autographed copy of that masterpiece.

A GOOD START

JESSE OWENS, the "world's fastest human," contributed recently to a Y. M. C. A. building fund in his home city. Owens knows what it takes to win a race, whether on the track or against such tough opponents as racial prejudice, poverty and environment. In explaining his contribution, he used the figure of a race to describe the case of the boys he hopes to help.

"A good start is hard to beat," said Owens. "Once in a while a boy who has gotten off to a bad start manages to catch up with the leaders, but it's mighty tough sledding for him. It's the boys who get off to a flying start who are going to win."

"City life is difficult enough for any boy, but it's extra hard for colored youngsters. They have so many obstacles to overcome. The Y teaches them a sound philosophy of life and helps them over the tough spots."

It seems as if all children in the United States—a land of wealth and opportunity and promise—have a right to a good start in life, to health, education and happiness.

Up to a snappy morning and soon away to the post, finding there notice of the Chamber of Commerce meeting to be held Monday in honor of George Grand-Girard. It was 60 years ago this month that George Grand-Girard entered the drug business. He has scores of distinctions, but to me the most unusual is that he is an absolutely unique druggist in that when he wishes his morning and afternoon Coca Cola he must go elsewhere than his store to obtain it. Everyone knows and respects George Grand-Girard and any tribute that could be paid him by the scrivener already is in the minds of the public. And I join everyone else in wishing him many more years of health and happiness.

SOVIET ENVOY GOT EARFUL

WASHINGTON — One of the most unusual dinner parties which a bizarre Washington has seen in a long time took place at the Soviet Embassy the other day, attended by about thirty men and three women.

The men represented a cross-section of New Deal officials, Congressmen and journalists, while the women were Mrs. Ogden Reid, wife of the publisher of The New York Herald Tribune; Miss Freda Kirchwey, editor of The Nation; and Dorothy Detzer, secretary of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

Ex-Cossack officer Troyanovsky, now Soviet Ambassador, probably knows how to get a cross-section of American opinion better than any other envoy in the Capital. Shortly after dinner, he announced that he had been trying to find out what was meant by "American isolation" and whether or not the United States really could stay neutral. Thereupon he turned the party over to Freda Kirchwey and asked her to conduct a Town Meeting discussion.

Miss Kirchwey, in turn, called upon Dorothy Detzer as the "best exponent of pacifism", and Miss Detzer, who has influenced many votes on Capitol Hill, expressed the opinion that the United States was unique both in being separated from the rest of the world and in having more sanity than the rest of the world.

POOL OF SANITY

Her exposition was rather long, and at one point she said:

"It seems to me that we have created a pool of sanity over here, something very important and precious that we must preserve and keep for ourselves."

"You don't believe this is something which Great Britain shares with you?" interrupted the booming voice of Sir Willmott Lewis, ace correspondent of The London Times.

"Absolutely not," whipped back Miss Detzer. "You British have been responsible for most of the tragedy of Europe and you can take the consequences. It was you who caused this march of Hitlerism, this catastrophe in Spain. It was you who blasted Mussolini. It is you who have nurtured and encouraged every dictator who has pushed his head up in Europe, and the sooner this system which the so-called British ruling class has created falls, the better."

"And," continued the irate lady, scarcely pausing for breath, "you are one of those who would have this country follow you into the maelstrom. And behind you I see one of your staunch supporters."

"You don't mean me, do you?" queried Felix Morley, editor of The Washington Post.

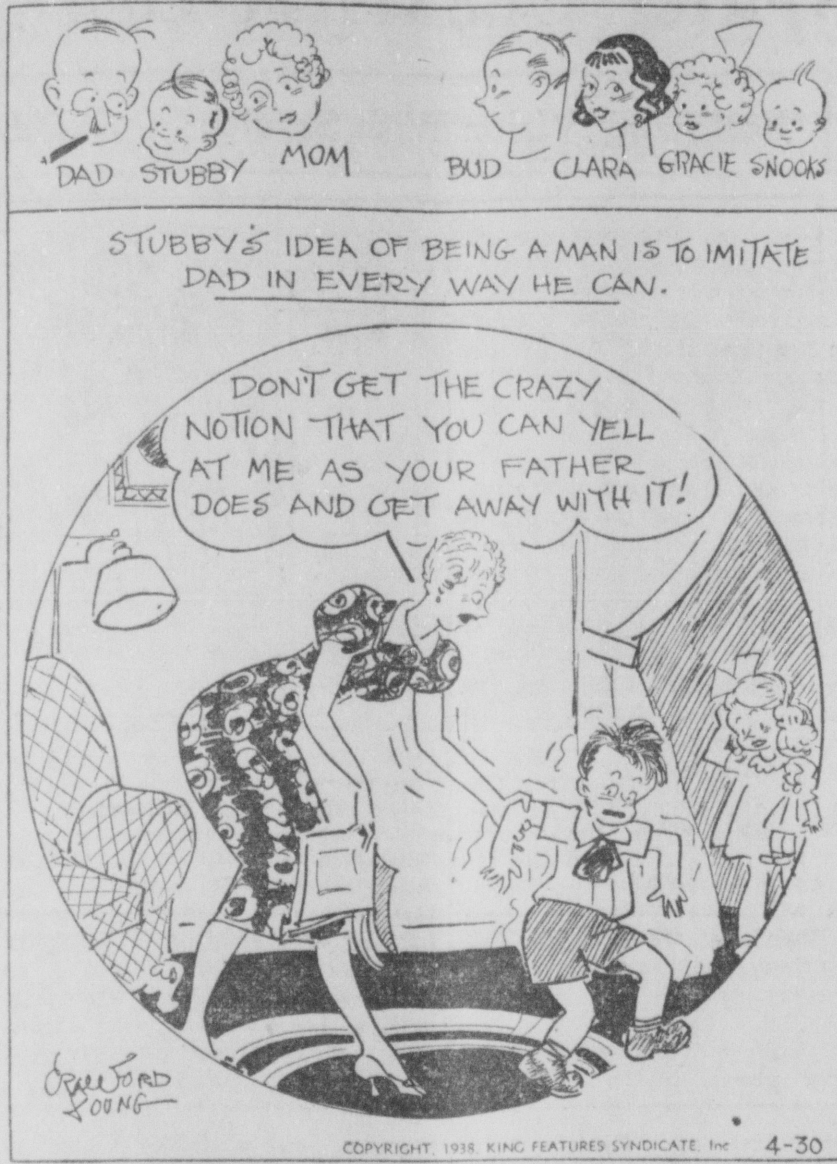

"Yes, I mean you," replied Miss Detzer, laughing despite her indignation at the way Morley peeked out from behind Sir Willmott.

Government Has Leprosy Sanitarium

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I HAVE JUST been talking to a young man who accompanied nine lepers to the U. S. government sanitarium for lepers near New Orleans. I think it is probably not generally known that the government maintains such an institution. These lepers were all collected in California and about half of them had escaped from the institution. Most of them were Mexicans, as a large proportion of lepers in the United States are.

The idea of leprosy to most people is that of an ancient biblical disease which has long since disappeared from the earth. As a matter of fact, we have a good many lepers in the United States all the time. Of course, the idea of leprosy is one that brings horror because it is supposed to be very contagious by contact.

I never will forget the first case I ever saw, which was in Boston. The patient had been a cook in a household for several months, and when that household discovered that she had leprosy, they were the worst frightened people I have ever seen. And yet none of them contracted leprosy and, as a matter of fact, in temperate climates it is hardly contagious at all.

I understand there are always about 25 or 30 cases in New York and they are more or less at large, and yet there is no well-substantiated record of a person's contracting the disease in New York or its vicinity. In tropical climates, however, apparently leprosy is more contagious. Around the Gulf of Mexico and in Florida, Louisiana and Texas, the disease spreads, although feebly.

Almost Wiped Out

In former years in Hawaii there were over a thousand lepers and about a third of them had become infected in the family circle. By rigorous segregation in an institution of the patients, the disease has been nearly entirely wiped out in the islands.

These methods of segregation have made leprosy a rare disease compared to what it was in the Middle Ages. Indeed, leprosy may be said to be important in history as the cause of the free hospital movement. The first hospitals established in Europe were leper houses. Previously, lepers wandered the countryside living in miserable huts, far away from other habitation and warning of their approach by ringing a bell the Lazarets bell.

When the movement to segregate them in hospitals began, it grew very rapidly, so that there were 220 of them in England, and over 2,000 in the Hotel Dieu, the place of God's hospitality, in France.

One More Wedding

CHAPTER 42

"A MAN is always permitted a leave of absence to get married," Ray explained to Barbara, later in the evening on which she had told him she would marry him. You'll meet me in Paris, my sweet, and we'll ramble through the Bois when the chestnut trees are blooming—Barbara, my dearest, you do mean it?"

"Yes, Ray, of course I do."

But the moon hung sedately on a good substantial nail back of London Tower, and the Thames, which lay before them, had no rippling, dancing waves.

When Garry had asked her to marry him, the lights had been shining on the East river and in the buildings that climbed the city sky, and there had been a great log burning in his fireplace and they had been alone in his living room. His head was bandaged in layers of gauze.

For a moment her self-possession left. Her hand closed around the narrow stem of her water goblet, then slowly relaxed. She was glad that Ray had not noticed. She would never again think of Garry. Never! Not even when she saw a peddler with a basket of yellow roses, or heard a song that he used to hum. Never again! She turned to Ray with a smile on her lips, and the hint of tears in her eyes did not let him know that there was no mirth in them.

She saw him off the next night, calling to her until the little boat was too far from shore. Then, groping blindly through tears that would no longer be denied, she went home. She must make a mask, and wear it forever. Then, if her heart twisted strangely at times, only she would know. There were moments when she hated Garry because he had done this to her, and moments when she loved him, no matter how deep the bruise his going had left.

She plunged into the work she had been neglecting while Ray delayed. She wrote Ray gay, happy letters. She dropped into the luncheon room to see the old woman, now and then.

One night the woman said: "Child, you should be happier." "But I was happy when Ray was here. I don't think when he is around. I'll be all right."

After all, she did love Ray, in another manner. She missed him. With a sigh that was almost happiness one day, she found that she had started swiftly because someone's laugh had held his tone. He was associated with her London memories. She would be well and waiting when he came back.

She wrote to Natalie that she was engaged to Ray.

Natalie, meeting Garry one day, told him about her letter from Barbara, just as Barbara had hoped she would.

Natalie told it quite casually, as she knew Barbara would wish it told. Garry had remarked that he hoped Barbara and Ray would be very appy, murmured some inconsequential things, and gone away presently. After that he had worked harder than ever on the new play.

That week-end Ruth telephoned him that she and Peter were in town. Peter's book was finished and his serialization was starting. He had resigned from the Martinsville Post and they were taking an apartment in town, because Peter was going to work on a New York newspaper.

Ruth and Peter asked Garry to dinner. They were so merry and devoted and interested in his plans that he felt an ache, which he had managed to keep pretty well in hand, growing a little bigger. He tried to visualize Barbara as she had been that last morning at the boat—cool, gay, not very interested in him, but that image kept slipping away, to let one of a girl with rusty hair and an eager smile flitting gray eyes, step from the boat and wave from the wharf. And he, in turn, became the traveler, as that last summer scene was played again.

Because he threw himself so intensely into his new play, the lines came to life and glowed. The scenes took definite shape. He was working now, harder than he had worked before. Now and then he dropped in at a tea for a literary or theater personage, or let himself be included in somebody's private party. He came alone, though.

Ruth commented on that fact to Peter one night.

"Garry's thinner. He and Wenda are washed up. I wonder if it hit him so hard."

"He'll recover," Peter said, remembering those days in the dusty, shabby office when he had watched a rusty head bent over a clattering typewriter and wondered if Barbara's gray-green eyes would ever be serious when he talked of love.

"Yes, of course, he'll recover," Ruth assented, and for a moment thought of a girl who had sat alone on a terrace one summer afternoon while a man whom she had loved for a long time pledged his troth to another girl in a little town in the middle west.

Odd, she reminded, that Peter had been the newspaper editor in that little town where the wedding had taken place.

Peter crossed the room and put his arms around her and held her closely a moment. He had said no word to her of the love he had once borne Barbara, and she had not talked to him of the days when her world had rocked because Bill Jameson had married Marie Rinehart. That was so completely done for both of them. Yet each of them knew, in some way that could not be touched with words, that the other had suffered a little somewhere, sometime.

It was that same week that Wenda Ayer resigned from the play. Someone was leaving an English production and she had been offered the part. Impersonally, as though Wenda had never stood for a strange, impetuous rhythm that followed after glamor and beating drums and shooting stars, Garry commented inwardly men and others just have a weigh.

"A Man's Home Is His Castle"—that's still true though it was written 'way back when a house was completely surrounded by a moat instead of mortgages.

European women are reported slow in buying gas masks because they look so hideous. There's on her lack of loyalty. The play had accepted her when she needed it. She was contributing to the progress of the show, but she would not linger because it needed her.

She had taken from him the girl he loved, too, but he held no censure for that. It was his own stupidity that had sent him chasing a cobweb over the moon. Well, anyway, he was glad Wenda was going. He wondered suddenly if she ever received her vanity case.

Then, one morning, spring dropped down from the sky. It was Saturday and Garry was free from the office. His play was nearly done. He decided that he would go away to work on it. He would take a ferry across the Hudson, tramp in the Palisades until he came to a place of smooth, flat rocks. On some hilltop he would spread the Indian blanket he was carrying and work for a while.

He walked five or six miles, breathing in the early spring air. He hadn't taken a nuke for a long time. He must begin again. In college he had been a member of the track team and he had a letter on a sweater somewhere earned for doing a high jump.

He found a comfortable spot on which to camp while he worked, and studied his script for several hours, oblivious to the passing of the day. When he glanced up the sun was far down. He must hurry. He felt hungry and wondered if he would have to wait until he reached Manhattan to find a steak and baked potato. It was quiet in the Palisades. He had come farther than he realized. He looked down the bank, wondering now far it was to the string of lights that marked a ferry boat station.

There were no sounds, no people as he started to retrace his steps. He had done a good day's work and he felt healthily tired, both mentally and physically. He decided that he would come often to the hills above the Hudson—the hills where legend said the ghosts of the sailors left behind by Hendrick Hudson still watched for the mythical ship that would carry them back to Amsterdam.

He was so engrossed with his own thoughts that four men, carrying a bundle, came around a bend in the trail before he heard footstep. Clearly and distinctly their voices came to him:

"All right, Legs, but you gotta keep that kid out of sight till you get the 50 grand! I'm taking no chances. If the cops head this way, we're done for. So we'll toss the brat in the river. Get me? But it's up to you guys to see the cops don't get wind of the hide-out."

At the same time the four men sighted Garry. They knew that their voices had reached him, and he was aware of it. The bundle squirmed in one of the man's arms.

Before Garry could speak, one of the men said: "Take him along fellows. The guy's heard too much."

I never will forget the first case I ever saw, which was in Boston. The patient had been a cook in a household for several months, and when that household discovered that she had leprosy, they were the worst frightened people I have ever seen. And yet none of them contracted leprosy and, as a matter of fact, in temperate climates it is hardly contagious at all.

I understand there are always about 25 or 30 cases in New York and they are more or less at large, and yet there is no well-substantiated record of a person's contracting the disease in New York or its vicinity. In tropical climates, however, apparently leprosy is more contagious. Around the Gulf of Mexico and in Florida, Louisiana and Texas, the disease spreads, although feebly.

Almost Wiped Out
In former years in Hawaii there were over a thousand lepers and about a third of them had become infected in the family circle. By rigorous segregation in an institution of the patients, the disease has been nearly entirely wiped out in the islands.

These methods of segregation have made leprosy a rare disease compared to what it was in the Middle Ages. Indeed, leprosy may be said to be important in history as the cause of the free hospital movement. The first hospitals established in Europe were lazarettos or leper houses. Previously, lepers wandered the countryside living in miserable huts, far away from other habitation and warning of their approach by ringing a bell the Lazarus bell.

When the movement to segregate them in hospitals began, it grew very rapidly, so that there were 220 of them in England, and over 2,000 in the Hotel Dieu, the place of God's hospitality, in France.

CHAPTER 42
"A MAN is always permitted a leave of absence to get married," Ray explained to Barbara, later in the evening on which she had told him she would marry him. "You'll meet me in Paris, my sweet, and we'll ramble through the Bois when the chestnut trees are blooming—Barbara, my dearest, you do mean it?"
"Yes, Ray, of course I do."
But the moon hung sedately on a good substantial nail back of London Tower, and the Thames, which lay before them, had no rippling, dancing waves.
When Garry had asked her to marry him, the lights had been shining on the East river and in the buildings that climbed the city sky, and there had been a great log burning in his fireplace, and they had been alone in his living room. His head was bandaged in layers of gauze.
For a moment her self-possession left. Her hand closed around the narrow stem of her water goblet, then slowly relaxed. She was glad that Ray had not noticed. She would never again think of Garry. Never! Not even when she saw a peddler with a basket of yellow roses, or heard a song that he used to hum. Never again! She turned to Ray with a smile on her lips, and the hint of tears in her eyes did not let him know that there was no mirth in them.
She saw him off the next night, calling to her until the little boat was too far from shore. Then, groping blindly through tears that would no longer be denied, she went home. She must make a mark, and wear it forever. Then, if her heart twisted strangely at times, only she would know. There were moments when she hated Garry because he had done this to her, and moments when she loved him, no matter how deep the bruise his going had left.
She plunged into the work she had been neglecting while Ray delayed. She wrote Ray gay, happy letters. She dropped into the luncheonroom to see the old woman, now and then.
One night the woman said: "Child, you should be happier."
"But I was happy when Ray was here. I don't think when he is around. I'll be all right."
After all, she did love Ray, in another manner. She missed him. With a sigh that was almost happiness one day, she found that she had started swiftly because someone's laugh held his tone. He was associated with her London memories. She would be well and waiting when he came back.
She wrote to Natalie that she was engaged to Ray.

Natalie, meeting Garry one day, told him about her letter from Barbara, just as Barbara had hoped she would.
Natalie told it quite casually, as she knew Barbara would wish it told. Garry had remarked that he hoped Barbara and Ray would be very appy, murmured some in-

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

SPRING IS THE best time to take cuttings from your delphiniums, for at this time the plants are vigorous. Only take cuttings from healthy stock, for if the plants are diseased or infected in any way the results will be disappointing.

Each cutting should have a piece of the crown attached to it, as shown in this Garden-Graph. Take cuttings which are from three to six inches long and remove the opened leaves.

Plant the cutting in a flat or frame outdoors and use clean, sharp, slightly acid sand. The cuttings will require shading at first from direct sunlight. As the roots begin to form, however, more sunlight can gradually be allowed until they finally are growing in full sun.

In about a month's time the cuttings will have rooted, and they can then be transplanted into small flower pots and later set out in the garden.

Dormant, cold storage lily bulbs or pot grown plants of garden lilies may be secured and planted outdoors. A warm, sunny and well fertilized spot should be chosen for the first planting of gladioli corms or any of the Summer bulbs. Violas, pansies and English daisies may be set out in the borders, provided soil and weather conditions are favorable.

Mrs. Matthews remarked that there are two fatalities a day in the state of Ohio from automobile accidents. There are also three billion dollars spent each year as a result of accidents in this state. She stressed the fact that at all times a driver of an automobile or truck should know the condition of his car and see that it is mechanically perfect.

From Honeymoon to a HOME all their OWN!

The wedding was only a few months off. John was talking about renting. "We will not!" Helen exclaimed. "Not when rent money will build a home of our own!"

So it was that John visited The Circleville Savings Bank to inquire about a mortgage loan. Much to his surprise he found that only a small down payment was required, and that the monthly payments covering principal, interest, taxes and insurance would be no more than he had planned paying out for rent.

Why don't you, too, get full information regarding a long-term, low-cost, self-reduction mortgage loan? It's the easiest way to build or buy a home of your own.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

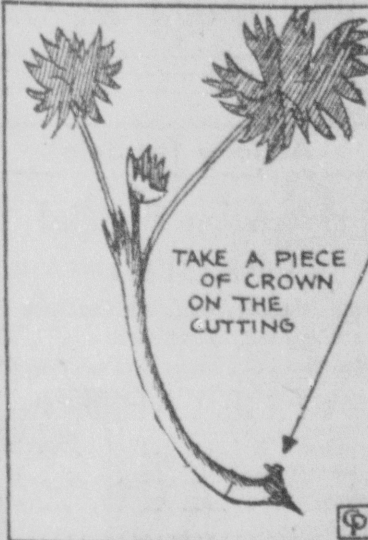

SPRING IS THE best time to take cuttings from your delphiniums, for at this time the plants are vigorous. Only take cuttings from healthy stock, for if the plants are diseased or infected in any way the results will be disappointing.

Each cutting should have a piece of the crown attached to it, as shown in this Garden-Graph. Take cuttings which are from three to six inches long and remove the opened leaves.

Plant the cutting in a flat or frame outdoors and use clean, sharp, slightly acid sand. The cuttings will require shading at first from direct sunlight. As the roots begin to form, however, more sunlight can gradually be allowed until they finally are growing in full sun.

In about a month's time the cuttings will have rooted, and they can then be transplanted into small flower pots and later set out in the garden.

Dormant, cold storage lily bulbs or pot grown plants of garden

Delphinium cuttings

lilies may be secured and planted outdoors. A warm, sunny and well fertilized soil should be chosen for the first planting of gladioli corms or any of the Summer bulbs. Violas, pansies and English daisies may be set out in the borders, provided soil and weather conditions are favorable.

Newlon; reading, "Easter Morning in Old Salem" by Mrs. Wright; reading, "My First Courtship," Harold Schein; clarinet duets "Blue Bells of Scotland" and "Come All Ye Faithful," by Paul and Carl Schein.

STUDENTS GIVE TALK ON SAFETY

In assembly Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Matthews of the State department of safety gave an interesting talk on safety habits.

She said that people should cultivate the habits of playing and working in safety. They also should remember three important factors of safety. They are steady nerves, trained muscles, and a clear mind.

Mrs. Matthews remarked that there are two fatalities a day in the state of Ohio from automobile accidents. There are also three billion dollars spent each year as a result of accidents in this state.

She stressed the fact that at all times a driver of an automobile or truck should know the condition of his car and see that it is mechanically perfect.

SENIOR DAY

After being cast aside for several years, Senior Day is again making its bow. This day is a time of recognition for the boys and girls graduating this year.

In the past this occasion has been celebrated various ways, "Dress-up day" being the most popular. This year however, our faculty has given us a definite program to follow and we consider this the best plan yet.

After all, we are not in our childhood days. We are supposed to be the young men and women of tomorrow. If we do things which are childish, will the people of today think we are eligible to be the supporters of the world tomorrow?

The Kiwanis club has secured Dr. Guy Bingham, of Washington D. C. to speak to us. Dr. Bingham is well informed on the subject of young people and their problems.

We, the seniors, feel that from this program we will derive more knowledge of the problems of young people than we have at any time in the past. I am sure that this day will be very interesting for all those concerned. Not only will it be interesting, but educational as well.

We hope sincerely that each boy and girl will do his best to keep this day free of anything below a senior's standard.

The happiest days of our lives are just about ended. Sometimes we have been serious, sometimes mischievous, but all in good faith. I'm sure each Senior will try to make this year's Senior Day the best ever.

And may I say that we, the class of '38, sincerely thank the Circleville Kiwanis Club, for its interest in us. We thank you gentlemen, for giving us what should prove to be a most enjoyable, interesting, and educational Senior Day.

—Harriet Beery.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

VICTORY FOR MORPHEUS

SLEEPINESS is hardly considered an adjunct of winning bridge, but most anything you can think of may be true at times in this funny game. Inattentiveness which causes a player to perpetrate some unbelievably bad bid or play has been known to redound to his advantage because the missing cards happened to be distributed in his favor.

South hadn't bothered to listen to the bidding. So far as he was concerned, it was his turn to lead against a 3-No Trumps contract, so decided to open the fourth-best from his star suit, diamonds. As a consequence his side got two tricks, holding the contract to five-odd. Had he realized he was leading against spades, he would have led a club. And if you can find a moral in this, make the most of it.

Tomorrow's Problem

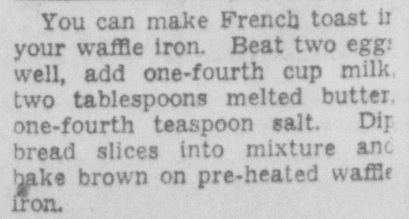

Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.

Coming late in a long evening of play, this deal brought forth the worst bridge of the night from all concerned. East started it with an opening bid of 2-Spades which was far from justified. West called 3-Hearts and East 4-Spades, which crowded the bidding so badly that West, who really should have spoken more if he trusted his partner, was scared out of any further action. Or perhaps he was just too tired.

Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.

What is the best bidding of this hand?

BANQUET IN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH TO HONOR GEORGE F. GRAND-GIRARD

ADDRESSES AND MUSIC PLANNED AT TESTIMONIAL

Sixtieth Anniversary As Circleville Merchant To Be Observed

Friends of George F. Grand-Girard, genial W. Main street druggist, will honor him at a banquet Tuesday evening in the First Presbyterian church in observance of his 60th anniversary in business.

The program will consist of brief remarks by Meeker Terwilliger, E. A. Brown, W. E. Wallace, E. S. Neuding, Dr. E. J. Lilly and Fred Clark. The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, church pastor, will be toastmaster. Music will be furnished by the Little German band of Circleville high school. Vocal selections will include a quartet consisting of Mrs. Clark Will, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Yates and Mack Parrett and solos by Mrs. Will and Franklin Price. Reservations are being received by Robert G. Colville, county treasurer.

On Wednesday Mr. Grand-Girard will hold "open house" at his store. Several valuable gifts are to be offered.

Mr. Grand-Girard, whose name denotes that he is of French descent, was born in a church parsonage at Red Oak, Brown county, June 9, 1862. He is the descendant of a Huguenot family that came to this country in the early part of the 19th century.

He attended Highland Institute, Hillsboro, and later the Kingston Academy. Mr. Grand-Girard came to Circleville on May 1, 1878 and entered the drug business with his brother, Herdman. He worked his way through the Cincinnati College of Pharmacy. His bed room was in a storeroom of the drug store where he was employed.

In 1883 he purchased the interest of his brother in the business. The building has been used as a drug store since it was erected in 1847 by Dr. Edson B. Olds. It stood on the circle.

Mr. Grand-Girard has been active in church affairs for many years. He is an elder of the Presbyterian church, former superintendent of the Sunday school, and treasurer of the Pickaway County Sunday School Assn. for 35 years. He was a member of the board of education from 1908 to 1916.

He has two children, Stanley and Miriam. Mrs. Grand-Girard died in 1906.

The last "big celebration" conducted in connection with one of his business anniversaries was in 1928. More than 1,500 persons attended his "open house" during which 700 roses and carnations and 400 cigars were issued.

OLD FILES SHOW PIONEERS' WOES

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., April 30—(UP)—It was a tossup who had the most trouble with Indians during the "winning of the West"—Congress or the pioneer residents of the area.

Demands by settlers were revealed here when Dr. George P. Hammond, head of the University of New Mexico history department, unearthed "memorials" or memorandums, listing the grievances of pioneering to President Johnson.

One complaint, sent following Johnson's entry to the White House after the assassination of Lincoln, complained in poetic terms:

"Our people lie down to sleep, surrounded with abundance, but they arise in the morning to learn that, during the night, they have been robbed."

To prove this statement—and at the same time to demonstrate where the prefix to the term "hardy pioneers" originated—the following list of damages suffered by residents of the territory during an Indian raid was forwarded. It listed: 123 persons killed; 32 persons wounded; 21 persons captured by Indians; 3,259 horses and mules stolen; 13,473 head of cattle run off; 294,740 head of sheep and goats taken.

Dr. Hammond displayed another complaint to President Johnson demanding "prompt" action on the part of the general government so as to dispose of the savages who are committing depredations (coming nearly to our capital to rob and murder) and to protect our citizens from their marauding expeditions.

One also warned the Washington congressmen that unless action was prompt against plains tribes, the territory would be threatened with isolation from the East due to the ever bolder raids on traffic between Santa Fe and St. Louis.

through trade negotiations. Financially weak, Germany has entered into a series of barter agreements with the central European states designed to facilitate exchange of goods and to broaden Nazi influence. This program has met with considerable success and any effort by Britain or France to chisel in on Balkan trade would be viewed by Berlin as a hostile action.

Hungary, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Rumania have come into the Nazi trade orbit, accepting German manufactures at favorable prices in exchange for natural resources and agricultural products for the Reich. In addition, the German expansion has put Hitler in a position to bring economic pressure on the Czechs which like Germans are exporters of manufactures.

France in Center

France long watched the Nazi trade expansion with grave misgivings because every step increased Hitler's political influence among states which France strengthened after the World War to act as a buffer against defeated Germany. Financial difficulties at Paris however virtually nullified the French trade position in central Europe.

British financial backing might correct that French weakness—might lead to intense economic rivalry in the Balkans as a weapon against Nazi expansion. But such a development would create a striking parallel with the pre-war march of imperial Germany to the East, the clash with British interests and the conflagration of 1914.

'BIG JIM' WARNS F. D.'S FOES OF POPULAR VOTES

WASHINGTON, April 30—(UP)—Postmaster General James A. Farley warned opponents of President Roosevelt today that American citizens believe the chief executive is fighting their battle and will vindicate him at the polls.

He cautioned the opposition not to mistake the "noisy outcry of a small minority possessing exceptional facilities for publicity and propaganda for the genuine voice of the people."

"Because he has dared challenge the special privileges of a powerful group, President Roosevelt is the constant target of bitter criticism and at times of malicious personal abuse," Farley said.

"The tory diehards never learn that when they adopt the weapons of treachery and deceit to tear down and destroy the patriotic policies of a Thomas Jefferson or of a Franklin D. Roosevelt, the people invariably cast their votes for the sturdy leaders who fight their battles and preserve their rights."

The falling off in Illinois licenses has acted as a strong curb to hasty marriages, officials admit, while the previous fear that impatient couples might flee to Indiana's once notorious Gretna Greens, such as Crown Point, is being eliminated through decision of the latter state's special committee on marriage laws to draw up similar legislation.

Dr. Verne K. Harvey, Indiana health director, said his committee of 50 is surveying the state's marriage contract.

Love-At-First-Sight Affairs Are Not Fortunate

Survey Shows

Long Courtships Lead to Greatest Bliss, College Says

CHICAGO, Ill., April 30.—For the first time on collegiate record, a comprehensive survey of what makes marriages succeed or fail has been completed by the University of Chicago, and if the conclusions are any criterion, it will soon be unfashionable as well as unwise to marry in haste and repent at leisure.

For one of the most definite revelations of the department of sociology's study of 526 married couples in the Chicago area was that the happiest marriages result from long courtships—of five years or more.

Thus the "love at first sight" advocates are given a scientific rebuff, for Prof. Ernest B. Burgess of the university's sociology class, in announcing the result of his investigation, declares the experiences of the 526 couples in the marriage laboratory can be taken as typical among average young American men and women.

True Test For Love

Not only is a five-year period of acquaintance advisable. Professor Burgess' conclusions state, but better chances of marital bliss are indicated if there is an actual "courtship" period of about three years and an understanding or engagement lasting from 12 to 24 months. If love survives such a test ranging from five to ten years, married life cannot help being successful, the sociologist believes.

The $11,377.59 damage action of Juanita Skinner, a minor, of Perry township, against James and Donald Clark, Ross county, was transferred Friday from Pickaway county Common Pleas court to Ross county. It was at first believed the Clarks were Pickaway county residents, attorneys said.

Miss Skinner, who filed suit through her father, William H. Skinner, was injured in an auto collision at the junction of the Yatesville-Madison Mills and Danville-Bloomington roads in Fayette county on Oct. 3, 1937. She charges the cause of her injuries was the reckless and negligent operation of the defendants' car. The action filed in Pickaway county was dismissed.

CHINESE SMASH DRIVE OF JAPS TAKE TANCHENG

SHANGHAI, April 30—(UP)—The Chinese have smashed a new Japanese drive and have retaken the city of Tancheng on the central front after a battle in which the Japanese left 2,000 dead on the field, it is asserted officially today at Hankow, the Chinese emergency capital.

Coincidentally, Chinese airplanes, in a raid avenging a terrible Japanese "emperor's birthday" attack on Hankow yesterday, raided Japanese held Wuhu on the Yangtze river and, it was asserted, shot down three Japanese planes.

The Chinese reports of the battle of Tancheng made it appear that they had won a most important victory. The Japanese, under orders to take Hsuehchow, junction point of the Tientsin-Nanking and Lunghai railroads, by May 9, had started a vigorous offensive.

Intensified Effort Is Satisfactory Answer

About the only satisfactory answer for the average man to the problems he meets during bad business periods is to intensify his efforts. Economists, politicians and writers may have their opinions about this and that but even during the worst times there are always some men who forge ahead. Obviously a man can't ignore conditions but where he has no control over them his best bet is to intensify his effort, to use more mental and physical energy. Singing the blues never has been a satisfactory solution.

BANQUET IN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH TO HONOR GEORGE F. GRAND-GIRARD

ADDRESSES AND MUSIC PLANNED AT TESTIMONIAL

Sixtieth Anniversary As Circleville Merchant To Be Observed

Friends of George F. Grand-Girard, genial W. Main street druggist, will honor him at a banquet Tuesday evening in the First Presbyterian church in observance of his 60th anniversary in business.

The program will consist of brief remarks by Meeker Terwilliger, E. A. Brown, W. E. Wallace, E. S. Neuding, Dr. E. J. Lilly and Fred Clark. The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, church pastor, will be toastmaster. Music will be furnished by the Little German band of Circleville high school. Vocal selections will include a quartet consisting of Mrs. Clark Will, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Yates and Mack Parrett and solos by Mrs. Will and Franklin Price. Reservations are being received by Robert G. Colville, county treasurer.

On Wednesday Mr. Grand-Girard will hold "open house" at his store. Several valuable gifts are to be offered.

Mr. Grand-Girard, whose name denotes that he is of French descent, was born in a church parsonage at Red Oak, Brown county, June 9, 1862. He is the descendant of a Huguenot family that came to this country in the early part of the 19th century.

He attended Highland Institute, Hillsboro, and later the Kingston Academy. Mr. Grand-Girard came to Circleville on May 1, 1878 and entered the drug business with his brother, Herdman. He worked his way through the Cincinnati College of Pharmacy. His bed room was in a storeroom of the drug store where he was employed.

In 1883 he purchased the interest of his brother in the business. The building has been used as a drug store since it was erected in 1847 by Dr. Edison B. Olds. It stood on the corner.

Mr. Grand-Girard has been active in church affairs for many years. He is an elder of the Presbyterian church, former superintendent of the Sunday school, and treasurer of the Pickaway County Sunday School Assn. for 35 years. He was a member of the board of education from 1905 to 1916.

He has two children, Stanley and Miriam. Mrs. Grand-Girard died in 1906.

The last "big celebration" conducted in connection with one of his business anniversaries was in 1928. More than 1,500 persons attended his "open house" during which 700 roses and carnations and 400 cigars were issued.

OLD FILES SHOW PIONEERS' WOES

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., April 30.—(UP)—It was a tossup who had the most trouble with Indians during the "winning of the West"—Congress or the pioneer residents of the area.

Demand by settlers were revealed here when Dr. George P. Hammond, head of the University of New Mexico history department, unearthed "memorials" or memorandums, listing the grievances of pioneering to President Johnson.

One complaint, sent following Johnson's entry to the White House after the assassination of Lincoln, complained in poetic terms:

"Our people lie down to sleep, surrounded with abundance, but they arise in the morning to learn that, during the night, they have been robbed."

To prove this statement—and at the same time to demonstrate where the prefix to the term "hardy pioneers" originated—the following list of damages suffered by residents of the territory during an Indian raid was forwarded. It listed: 123 persons killed; 32 persons wounded; 21 persons captured by Indians; 3,259 horses and mules stolen; 13,473 head of cattle run off; 294,740 head of sheep and goats taken.

Dr. Hammond displayed another complaint to President Johnson demanding "prompt" action on the part of the general government so as to dispose of the savages who are committing depredations (coming nearly to our capital to rob and murder) and to protect our citizens from their marauding expeditions.

One also warned the Washington congressmen that unless action was prompt against plains tribes, the territory would be threatened with isolation from the East due to the ever bolder raids on traffic between Santa Fe and St. Louis.

through trade negotiations. Financially weak, Germany has entered into a series of barter agreements with the central European states designed to facilitate exchange of goods and to broaden Nazi influence. This program has met with considerable success and any effort by Britain or France to chisel in on Balkan trade would be viewed by Berlin as a hostile action.

Hungary, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and vitally important—to Germany—Roumania have come into the Nazi trade orbit, accepting German manufactures at favorable prices in exchange for natural resources and agricultural products for the Reich. In addition, the German expansion has put Hitler in a position to bring economic pressure on the Czechs which like Germans are exporters of manufactures.

France in Center

France long watched the Nazi trade expansion with grave misgivings because every step increased Hitler's political influence among states which France strengthened after the World War to act as a buffer against defeated Germany. Financial difficulties at Paris however virtually nullified the French trade position in central Europe.

British financial backing might correct that French weakness—might lead to intense economic rivalry in the Balkans as a weapon against Nazi expansion. But such a development would create a striking parallel with the pre-war march of imperial Germany to the East, the clash with British interests and the conflagration of 1914.

'BIG JIM' WARNS F. D.'S FOES OF POPULAR VOTES

WASHINGTON, April 30.—(UP)—Postmaster General James A. Farley warned opponents of President Roosevelt today that American citizens believe the chief executive is fighting their battle and will vindicate him at the polls.

He cautioned the opposition not to mistake the "noisy outcry of a small minority possessing exceptional facilities for publicity and propaganda for the genuine voice of the people."

"Because he has dared challenge the special privileges of a powerful group, President Roosevelt is the constant target of bitter criticism and at times of malicious personal abuse," Farley said.

"The tory diatribe never learn that when the adopt the weapons of treachery and deceit to tear down and destroy the patriotic policies of a Thomas Jefferson or of a Franklin D. Roosevelt, the people invariably cast their votes for the sturdy leaders who fight their battles and preserve their rights."

Love - At - First - Sight Affairs Are Not Fortunate Survey Shows

Long Courtships Lead to Greatest Bliss, College Says

CHICAGO, Ill., April 30.—For the first time on collegiate record, a comprehensive survey of what makes marriages succeed or fail has been completed by the University of Chicago, and if the conclusions are any criterion, it will soon be unfashionable as well as unwise to marry in haste and repent at leisure.

For one of the most definite revelations of the department of sociology's study of 526 married couples in the Chicago area was that the happiest marriages result from long courtships—of five years or more.

Thus the "love at first sight" advocates are given a scientific rebuff, for Prof. Ernest B. Burgess of the university's sociology class, in announcing the result of his investigation, declares the experiences of the 526 couples in the marriage laboratory can be taken as typical among average young American men and women.

True Test For Love

Not only is a five-year period of acquaintance advisable. Professor Burgess' conclusions state, but better chances of marital bliss are indicated if there is an actual "courtship" period of about three years and an understanding or engagement lasting from 12 to 24 months. If love survives such a test ranging from five to ten years, married life cannot help being successful, the sociologist believes.

Couples who went to Sunday school between the ages of 19 and 25 were found to have better than an even chance for success in marriage, the professor adding that such "success" is usually interpreted to mean that divorce or separation has never been discussed.

Of the 526 couples used in the university's test, 55.4 per cent said they were "very happily married"; 24.7 per cent said they were happy; 11.9 per cent said they were merely content, 5.6 per cent admitted they were unhappy and 2.4 per cent added "very" to their unhappiness, so the unusually successful marriage appeared to be in the majority by a safe margin.

Helpful Factors

"Marriage is more successful if the husband has regular employment," Professor Burgess goes on to say. "The wife's outside interests, such as a job or other activity, helps to assure happiness as well, while similarity in racial, religious, social and economic background contribute to the ultimate result."

Couples from large families appear to be happier than those from families with only one or two children, the study disclosed. The 526 "model" couples had been married from one to six years to qualify as "experts" in this inquiry into why homes stay intact or drift on the rocks of wedded disagreement.

That marriages in Illinois and Indiana are headed for greater stability, as a result of more stringent laws, was foreseen recently when figures by the marriage license bureau in the Chicago area (Cook county) showed a drastic decline in applications since the law requiring three-day notice to wed became effective six months ago. A companion law passed at the same time requires medical tests of both parties to a marriage contract.

New Curbs

The falling off in Illinois licenses has acted as a strong curb to hasty marriages, officials admit, while the previous fear that impatient couples might flee to Indiana's once notorious Gretna Greens, such as Crown Point, is being eliminated through decision of the latter state's special committee on marriage laws to draw up similar legislation.

Dr. Verne K. Harvey, Indiana

health director, said his committee of 50 is surveying the state's marriage problem, and is doing its part to prolong longevity of the marriage status by aiming toward state laws which will not only make it more difficult to get married, but will follow Illinois' lead in prohibiting unions in cases where social diseases are indicated.

But the University of Chicago sociologists claim to have obviated the official worries of midwest states over marriage. If altar-bound couples follow the statistical advice gleaned from the recent survey, and wait for five or ten years before taking the domestic vows, there will be no need to wonder if Cupid can be trusted.

Courtships of five years or more result in the happiest marriages, according to a recent survey of 526 married couples in the Chicago area. Many states now have adopted laws requiring three-day notice to wed.

But it so happens that Dan Cupid caters to a lot of impatient romanticists to whom even three days is a hardship, accounting for the increase in out-of-state marriages by Illinois couples. Still, those who submit their romance to the test of time stand the best chance of being happy though married, Professor Burgess insists.

34 KILLED, MANY OTHERS INJURED IN BOMB RAIDS

LONDON, April 30.—(UP)—The Exchange Telegraph reported today that 34 were killed and 60 injured in a morning air raid on Barcelona. A second raid occurred at 11:15 a. m. but it was not known whether there were any casualties, the dispatch said.

The central and residential parts of the city were not bombed but some bombs were dropped in the outskirts. The planes circled high in a cloudless sky, sending thousands of citizens scrambling to underground shelters and subway stations.

The warning sirens began wailing at 8:30 a. m. In five minutes a bomb fell, followed by several small blasts which may have been anti-aircraft explosions.

A column of thick, black smoke rose high above the city's skyline against the blue of the Mediterranean and the sky. The noise was terrific, as though a bomb had exploded inside a great cave in the port.

the Bahamas and the West Indies, escorted by a destroyer. The President did not plan to fish, but took along an accumulation of mail and official reports on which he planned to spend most of his time.

He will decide over the weekend when and where he will end his cruise. It was believed that he would return either to Charleston or leave the Philadelphia off the naval academy at Annapolis and come ashore on the yacht, Potomac.

Mr. Roosevelt invited Pat McKenna, door-keeper at the White House for 35 years, to go on the cruise, but at the last minute McKenna's sister fell seriously ill and he declined. The President told him he had a rain check for the next cruise.

The Philadelphia is a new cruiser. She is of 10,000 tons and mounts six inch guns.

CHINESE SMASH DRIVE OF JAPS TAKE TANCHENG

SHANGHAI, April 30.—(UP)—The Chinese have smashed a new Japanese drive and have retaken the city of Tancheng on the central front after a battle in which the Japanese left 2,000 dead on the field, it is asserted officially today at Hankow, the Chinese emergency capital.

Coincidentally, Chinese airplanes, in a raid avenging a terrible Japanese "emperor's birthday" attack on Hankow yesterday, raided Japanese held Wuhu on the Yangtze river and, it was asserted, shot down three Japanese planes.

The Chinese reports of the battle of Tancheng made it appear that they had won a most important victory. The Japanese, under orders to take Hsuechow, junction point of the Tientsin-Nanking and Lunghai railroads, by May 9, had started a vigorous offensive.

Intensified Effort Is Satisfactory Answer

About the only satisfactory answer for the average man to the problems he meets during bad business periods is to intensify his efforts. Economists, politicians and writers may have their opinions about this and that but even during the worst times there are always some men who forge ahead. Obviously a man can't ignore conditions but where he has no control over them his best bet is to intensify his effort, to use more mental and physical energy. Singing the blues never has been a satisfactory solution.
